WHEN TO SOW—The letters after variety names tell when. If "x", then sow after soil is warm in spring or early summer; if "k", then sow in spring while soil is still cool; if "kt", it means sowing can be in open ground in either late autumn or early spring. If letters are "yt", then sow only in late autumn to earliest spring in open ground. Letter "w" indicates kinds to start in window, hotbed or greenhouse.

THE FINDING SIGNS—These are letters before the variety names. If "a", an annual is indicated; if "p", a hardy perennial; if "h", a kind for window or greenhouse. A bulb is marked by "b", a shrub by "s", a tree by "t", a vine by "v".
